COACH RUTGER WIESE /

Sets the overall curriculum

Leads coaching on the field

Everything will run on point, and with a lot of energy.

Rutger Wiese has coached extensively with youth, collegiate, and national teams in the United States for more than a decade, and his playing career includes six major championships in Europe.

Wiese just finished his third season with the Harvard field hockey coaching staff. The team went 10-7, the program's first winning season since 2004. He started with the Crimson in 2012 as a volunteer assistant before being named a full-time assistant coach in 2013. Over his first three seasons with the Crimson, 10 student-athletes have picked up All-Ivy League accolades.

Prior to Harvard, he was the head coach of Indiana University of Pennsylvania (2003-2009), where he posted a 96-39 record, ranking him first in career wins and winning percentage for the program. His tenure at IUP included three NCAA Division II Final Four appearances, the first PSAC championship in school history (2007), along with 19 players for 31 All-Conference selections, 11 players for 18 All-America selections, and one NCAA Division II Player-of-the-Year (2005). Before IUP, he served as the head coach of the Dutch District North team, as the assistant coach for the Dutch National Girls U17 team, and as the coach for a top-level Dutch women's club team.

Wiese is also the head coach of the Men's East Coast High Performance Center, and in 2011, he led the team to win the national championship. He is also an assistant coach with the USA men's national team and was part of the staff in 2013 when Team USA finished fourth at the Pan American Cup in Toronto.

As a player, Wiese has a wealth of international experience. He played as a defender at H.C. Bloemendaal, a major league team in his native, The Netherlands. With Bloemendaal, he won three Netherlands national championships (1999, 2000, 2002), a European championship (2001), and a European silver medal (2000). In 2010, he won the Scottish national indoor championship with Menziesshill H.C.
